FROM YOUR EDITOR'S DESK

Where And How To Buy-Fred Kindley of Phoenix, Arizona wrote me a letter in reference to our articles and how they are appreciated but annoyed to why is it when an item such as the South African proof set and other items are written about but the article lacks the with Fred. We have endeavored where and whenever possible to list the price and address, but at times this is impossible. The article was meant for the readers enjoyment not sales. We will make it a point in the future to mention the price and address if it is available to us. All I can say to dealers and collectors if you have something for sale try our pages, common or rare, we have thousands of readers constantly looking for every and anything in numismatics.

North East Ohio Coin Club will hold its 3 day convention July 22-24 at The Tuder Arms Hotel in Cleveland, Ohio. We have a table reserved with the Ampere Coin Shop to attend this event which is expected to break all records.

Word was just received that John Kelly of Wickliffe, Ohio who advertised as J & E was in a serious car accident in Tuscola. Illinois. John invited us to to attend this convention, we hope he is up and

The Canadian Numismatic Digest-This green covered book is the esult of many hours of research and study by its author Harold Don 7-Allen. Harold is an expert on Foreign paper money. This book with 75 pages of illustrations and articles deals mainly with Canadian and Foreign coinage and paper money. A very interesting book for reference. This book sells for $1.00 at your dealer or direct to Mr. Allen, 7534 Wiseman, Montreal, Quebec, Canada.

The new 14th Edition Red Guide Book was received for review. For the many anxious collector's who haven't seen one yet, it has (3) new listings of coinage—Phillipine Island, Hawaii and Alaska. Most all listings showed prices up with gold coins from 10% up. The under rated 1918/17-S 25¢ unc. listed at $700, and increase of $175. I am sure if any of these are for sale at $700. there must be a hundred dealers plus the amount who would gobble them up with a bonus to boot. There have been 3 sales of these and each at $1,000 and more.

Late date coins appear the hotest items—quarters, nickels and dimes, 1938-P 25¢ unc. $25, the 1949-S dime $7.50 and the 1950-D nickel $5.50 an increase of up to 400% per. If not already, I'd say most of these prices will be obsolete before long. Mr. Yeoman, author should find a better system to devise accurate up-to-date listings on a long range basis. Better yet 2 issues a year at ½ price per copy might prove very popular with the collectors and dealers. All in all I'd say this 14th edition is the best ever and a buy at $1.75 at your

SMALL DATE PROOF CENT

This new small date variety in the proof set is starting to make its move in price; they are now quoting $15. to $30. a set and will continue up. When you consider less than 65,000 were struck in comparison to an expected record mation at no cost in our issues.

high of some 1 1/4 million about a 25 to 1 ratio you have a good item Of course like everything that is speculative there is a risk. If you were lucky to order in Dec. 1959 chances are you got the small date. Our research records estimate less than 65,000 were struck. a more accurate estimate will be published shortly, watch for it. It is amusing to note the many die hards and the doubtful Tom's plus the pupils who are already about. Many readers who follow our column I'd say are sitting pretty. Others have already remarked they would have paid $50 for a subscription to Coin Press had they known. Others pay for special bulletins—yet it's all free in the Coin Press! I'd venture to

Orient Coins gaining popularlty with

U. S. Collectors

One of the top rare coin dealers of the country Abe Kossoff of Encino, Calif. is currently touring the orient countries in search of rare coins. One, in particular is the rare 5 ven piece that goes back to the Meiji Japan's "season of Light" brought her into the modern world. It was minted around 1880 some 13 years after Emperor Meiji assumed the throne and reformed everythingincluding money.

The coin Kossoff is seeking has a wreathed character meaning the 13th year of the Meiji reign on one side and a dragon on the other. It's about the size of the current day 1 yen. If and when he finds one, it will be price-less until the seller and buyer agreed on a price.

The 1943 copper cent, one of the most publicized coin of recent years was handled by Abe in 1958 in the

A.N.A. Convention. Attending several large conventions your editor had occasion to shake hands and exchange no more than several words of greetings. Abe, appears to be the quiet manner type and pleasant to talk to, he just buys, concludes his business and goes on his way.

Abe Kosoff

Kosoff, who has been collecting coins since 1929 and selling them to collectors since 1937, conducts all of his business through mail order in his home community in suburban Los Angeles.

One of his best customers, he recalls, was ex-King Farouk of Egypt. Kosoff once sold Farouk a 1913 Liberty head nickel for $2,700 and, after the king was disposed and all of his riches were sold, traveled to Cairo to buy it back for another customer at $3,900.

The coin has become so valuable to collectors in recent years that Kosoff recently offered $25,000 for another one. The owner wouldn't sell.

He said certain years of Japanese coins, along with the paper trade dollars printed here after the U.S. and Japan began trading in 1860, are collector's items.

He said another valuable coin was minted about 300 years ago in tribute to Dutch traders, the first foreigners allowed to trade and live on Japanese soil. It has a hole in the center, with a figure of a Dutchman on one side and a horse on the other.

Kosoff plans to leave Sunday for Hong Kong, Thailand, the Philippines, Israel, Greece and Spain, searching for rare coins all the way.

When he gets back to Encino, he plans to auction four coins, including an 1804 silver dollar, that totaled $1.35 in original value. Kosoff expects to make about $135,000 on the coins. The dollar alone is worth $50,000, he said.

Word has been received that Kossoff was in touch by phone with M/Sgt. John Spadone (Brother) when he got as close as 28 miles from the Air Base where John is stationed in Japan. Kosoff plans to tour the world in search of rare coins.

Brother John reports he is publishing a new book cotalogue "The Orient Coin Catalogue" which includes Japan, Korea, China and Manchuko. This first edition will sell for $1.00 and is expected on the market shortly. John has made an extensive study of these coins while stationed in Japan several years. Big brother John is 38 years old and will complete 20 years service in the Air Force from World War II in 1962. John writes his time in Japan is up and is expected to be in the U.S. in August this year.

From reports received, this set was in the King Farouk collection who purchased it from Smith & Sons, dealers from Chicago in , 1943. Mr. James Randall, noted foreign coin expert, from Ft. Lauderdale. Florida purchased it when the Farouk sale took place. Mr. Randall stated the Jacobs-Vermuele catalogue listed this rarity which also explained when these presentation sets were given to foreign dignitaries the foreigners would leave Japan with them thus being unknown to the collectors. Until the owner died, these presentation sets were unknown. Mr. Randall owned this set for 17 years until it was sold to Mr. Chester Kornegay, another foreign coin expert from Fayetteville, N. Carolina, who in turn sold it to M/Sgt. John G. Spadone now stationed in Japan. M/Sgt. Spadone who is an expert on Oriental coins published the Catalog of Modern Japanese, Korean and Manchukuo Coins. The book cover is in gloss with black and gold lettering. A limited 1st edition of 5,000 copies will be on the market shortly at $1.00 a copy. John states Japanese coins will go sky high in prices because they melted down so many there isn't enough to go around.

Pony Express Medal To Be Available July 5th

Salt Lake City, Utah-Plans for the release of the Pony Express Commemorative Medal on July 5th, 1960 were announced by Waddell F. Smith, President of the National Pony Exprss Centennial Association. The medal will be released just two weeks before the nine day reenactment, using one thousand horses and riders, to rerun the 1966 mile route of the Pony Express, both ways.

Congress authorized and the U.S. Mint is now manufacturing a special official U. S. Commemorative Pony Express Centennial Medal. They are to be delivered only to the National Pony Express Centennial Association. They will be placed on sale to provide a source of revenue to the Association to defray the expenses of the Centennial re-run beginning July 19, 1960, and the cost of erecting monuments and markers to preserve the location of the old trail. The Association is a non-profit corporation whose only purpose is to sponsor the Centennial and to perpetuate the history of the Pony Express. Under its charter no individual may derive any personal profit from its operations. The association was established by the Governors of the eight western states, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and California, through which the Pony Express ran.

The medal will be the Official U.S. Commemorative Pony Express Medal, 1 5/16ths inches in diameter (between a half dollar and a dollar in size), of bronze and of the finest art work. The sculptured heads of William H. Russell, Alexander Majors, and William B. Wad dell, the founders and operators of the historic Pony Express, will appear on one side of the medal and on the other, the famous Hansen Pony Express Horse and Rider with appropriate language. Original design for the medal was done by Julian A. Links of San Francisco, California, Final design and sculpture work was done by Mr. Gasparro of the Art Staff at the United States Mint at Philadelphia.

At present the Philadelphia Mint is manufacturing twenty thous-and medals for delivery by the 5th of July. Already half of these have been requested and paid for by organizations along the Pony Express route. Smith said that additional medals would be requested of the Director of the mint, but some delay may be experienced in Medals will be sold for $1.75 each. In lots of ten or more prices are lower. The rates are 10 to 24 medals, $1.40 each; 25 to 99, $1.25 each; 100 to 499, $1.10 each; 500 or over $1.00 each.

Orders accompanied by check or money order will be accepted in order of receipt and should be sent to National Pony Express Centennial Association, 2998 Connor Street, Salt Lake City 9, Utah.

The United States collection of Louis Eliasberg, Baltimore, Md., will be on exhibit at the Smithsonian Institution thru August 15. The Eliasberg collection is the most complete date and mint set of United States coins in existence. The claim to be the most complete is based on fact that it contains the only known specimen of 1873-CC dime without arrows and the 1870-S $3.00 gold

How To Form A New Coin Club

Fraternal Spirit and Numismatics of 1960 By Harold Don Allen

(Mr. Allen has served two terms as President of the Montreal Coin Club, is founder and faculty advisor at the High School of Montreal Club, and has done much to interpret the numismatic hobby through popular writings, This article, written specially for the Coin Press, offers suggestions for starting and building a successful coin club in your community.)

On busy St. Catherine street, the bright-light shopping artery of Canada's metropolis, you encounter a relatively quiet few blocks, too far east for Ogilvy's, Simpson's, Eatons, Morgan's and other focal points of English-language merchandising, too far west for Dupuis Freres and the high-quality dress and home furnishing shops of the French, an inbetween zone where, were the district less dis-reputable after dark, the tourist might be expected to stop and browse. Here, convenient to both populations, you discover what perhaps is the most remakable of Montreal's half dozen numismatic outlets,a store which seems to reflect much of today's numismatic tone. To outward appearances the store is somewhat typical: coin folders, booklets, catalogues bedeck the window, and the passer-by finds his glance arrested by the Canadian mint set encased in the plastic cube. The store interior, to the uninitiated, would seem un--for the merchandise largely is unfamiliar, and the numismatic hobby, to an extent, must be recognized as an acquired taste. Yet I would defy anyone to spend half an hour in that store, or in one of its hundreds of counterparts across the continent, without finding some of the genuine enthusiasm "brushing off." For this coin store, like many others, is remarkable in that, in a bustling metropolis where all living seems at an accelerated pace, it has captured something of the atmosphere of the olden-time rural general store. It is the "general store" of numismatics, and rare is the time when a hurried purchase does not extend itself into a half hour or more of country-style yarn spinning with the numismatic frater-nity representatives who always find time to draw up a chair. This scene and this atmosphere, so alien to the North America of 1960, suggests something of the special appeal that has commended the coin hobby to literally millions. It is a phenomenon which you and your friends may wish to capitalize on: the dividends will take the form of increased pleasure and satisfaction, the finest rewards which numismatic study and fraternal affiliation can provide.

Coin collecting, except perhaps in the miser's sense, never was a solitary pursuit. The wealthy young nobleman, of centuries back, who prided himself in his coin cabinet, sought the companionship of The numismatic scholars of the last or any other kindred souls century must have been prolific correspondents. Today, in one sense, the picture has changed. The true numismatist still enjoys conducting a fellow enthusiast through the intricacies of his collection, sharing the tale of a prize find. But no longer does he have far to look. Today, everyone seems to know something about coins and coin collecting, and not a few are anxious to find out more. The trend is a healthy one, assuring a buoyant market, a growing audience for books and periodicals, and a wealth of brainpower and other resources devoted to the strengthening of numismatic science. (Inherent may be the waves of speculation, the uninformed collecting, the blatant lack of mature taste,-but such misguided leadership need not be our serious concern.) This is a good time to be a coin collector and half the fun, most of us agree, is in trading anecdotes and duplicates by getting together with others who collect. Is there a coin club in your neighborhood? Probably, in this day 'pocket change collectors', millions of them, there is. But does it or "pocket change collectors", infinitions of them, there is. But does it exist only as informal and chance get-togethers, on the street corner, in the elevator, on a coffee break? Everyone knows somebody with whom he can "get together" about a "rare coin". Wouldn't it be better if there were a formal meeting place, and a time to pool interests and anecdotes, be it once a week or as infrequently as once a month? I suspect so, and I think that the hundreds of new clubs that have developed in the past decade reflect similar thought in communities from coast to coast, How do you start a coin club? What is the secret of a successful meeting and of a continued satisfactory programme from month to month and year to year? These are hard questions to answer, but interesting questions to discuss: my observations will be based upon executive and membership experience in Montreal and, perhaps more, on informal and invariably New Jersey area.

How do you start a coin club? One thing is certain: if you start by anticipating every conceivable stumbling block from sneak thieves among the exhibits to possible deficits at the tenth anniversary banquet, you'll not get started at all! Begin in a small way. Call one or two organizational meetings at members' homes or, if you've a good opportunity, at a small meeting room at the Y or other central locaspeakers, publicity men, good hard workers, then consider how you are going to procede. Publicity will be all-important at this stage, but you will want to have plans on the drawing board in advance.

Choose an interim executive. Have thoughts about a constitution. Then set a date for a first meeting, looking to the kind of publicity that should give the club the sort of start that you want You may settle for a notice in the window of the hobby shop, letting the good word circulate primarily by word of mouth. A prospective member with access to a duplicator might run off a few dozen "hand bills" for the local coin dealer to pass along. Or you may want to contact the newspaper and radio station: if you do, though, be prepared for a flood of queries from the general public, the kind that you might be better equipped to handle after the first few meetings have elapsed. (The reader wishing to consider further the important question of coin club publicity may consult the author's 1958 A.N.A. Convention Paper, "You and the Press", published in The Numismatist, March, 1959.)

Whether you have half a dozen members or half a hundred, a big problem at your young club will be what kind of a meeting to arrange. An important function of any introductory meeting is to provide an opportunity to get acquainted. Name tags might be a good investment. A panel could serve to introduce half a dozen of the more experienced collectors of the community, perhaps "break the ice" better than would a single guest speaker. So much depends upon the personalities involved! A few good exhibits always are conversation starters, and the meeting becomes less chairman-dominated when the proud owners are given broad scope to speak and answer questions on the numismatic series involved.

"What do we do at tonight's meeting?" should be no problem, for there is so much that could be done that the difficulty likely will be lack of time. A good Programme Committee could come up with a long list of suggestions, with due regard to local interests and to talent within and outside the group. You may wish a more clearly defined purpose for your Club; indeed, a Constitution, revised as necessary, should state specific and realistic goals. Your prime purposes, as I see it, will be educational and fraternal; the commercial side, if your membership wills it, can have a place, but unless the auction is subordinate to the guest speaker, you will, interestingly to mix a metaphor, be putting the cart very much before the horse. (At this point, read, if you will, Glenn Smedley's provacative Guest Editorial, "Numismatics versus Coin Collecting", in The Numismatist, January, 1960.) But an auction, in the right spirit, can be fun, and the friendly barter of yesteryear seems universally blended with the vest-pocket-dealer approach of today: you may want bourse tables and, auction-wise, the traditional 10% cut, but think twice if the tone of the Middle Eastern barter centre will not give way when the minutes are read, the nominations are called for, or the guest speaker introduced.

Getting things done-always a problem, but what is your approach when the only way to get a job undertaken is for the President and Secretary to flip for the dubious honour? Do you visualize the kind of club where fifty will turn out for the banquet, but no one will volunteer to phone the caterers? This problem, a very real one, is more serious than it seems, for the Secretary may do a very good job and everybody will congratulate him and try to reelect him, but the best part of belonging to any organization is taking an active part, and in this respect most of the membership will be losing out. I have found a sound way to get the quiet, retiring type of member active and participating to be to button-hole him privately and say, "Look, Jim, could you give us a hand checking on those who'll be at the Dinner. It'll only be tonight and the next meeting, and we'll find two others to work with you." He'll not likely refuse, and the others can be approached to "Give Jim a hand." Sure, the Treasurer could probably do it faster than the whole three of them, but sharing the credit is good psychology all around.

You'll be wise to have a Programme Committee, Exhibits Committee, Welcoming Committee, Speakers' Panel—everyone feeling that he has a job to do, and is not just a name on the membership roll. A surplus of talent makes possible a well-balanced meeting; a surplus of energy, a well-run organization. The knack, once every one is taking an active part, is to be able, skillfully, to pick and choose. Your Programme Committee will do well to offer material to the taste of the newcomer, but presented in such a way as to hold the interest of the experienced collector. A panel on grading should get everyone into the act! Actually, a list of panel and speaker top ics can be drawn up tentatively, then participants sought. Try to visit established clubs in neighbouring cities, and learn their more successful devices. Films and slides of numismatic interest add diversity. So does a quiz session. Of course, you will be continually on the alert for good speakers from outside your membership and from the coin clubs of neighbouring towns. Could the local museum provide someone to talk on buying and selling in Colonial times? Does the bank vice-president really make a hobby of studying histories of early financial institutions of the region? Has some prominent or not-so- prominent citizen just returned from a trip around the world, and would he like to describe the currency diffculties he had Several "musts" suggest themselves early in the setting up of a coin club. One is affiliation with national and regional numismatic organizations. Your members should have access to their journals and be kept informed of their doings. Their policies and should be discussed intelligently. A second "must" is a club library.

CANADIAN CARD CURRENCY

By Starr Gilmore

My purpose in this article is to sketch some of the French monetary history prior to the fall of Quebec. Of necessity, it can be no more than a brief sketch for space permits nothing more. However, it is still possible to give the reader a fair idea concerning some of the things that went on in New France.

Those who have read The Story of Canada's Currency, which contains a brief but well written account of money trouble during the French regime, will have noticed in the front an excellent illustration of playing card money. The example I am referring to is a 50 livre note of 1714 which has on it the signatures of Vaudreuil and Begot. For inspired rascality, the pair made a name for themselves in this field that would be difficult for anybody to equal. Certainly it is a pleasure to remember that French justice finally cought up with both of them.

Actually, the Marquis de Vaudreuil could have been an asset Actually, the Marquis de Valuareun could have been an asset to France of the most valuable kind. Wholly unlike the other French officials, he was Canadian born, really knew the country, and his father before him had been governor for nearly 22 years. Unhappily, his defects of charater were such as to make him worse than useless to the people he was supposed to represent. One of the blackest pages in his record centres about the treatment he accorded Montcalm, a man of excellent character and his superior in every pos-

Francois Begot, the peculiar creature of Vaudreuil, likewise could have been an asset to France. He certainly did not lack cleverness and ability and was the scion of a wealthy Bordeaux family. Nevertheless, he devoted himself entirely to the making of money, and judging from the record that he made, was quite unable to think of anything else. Vaudreuil was impossibly vain; Begot was impossibly selfish. With good reason, Montcalm despised both of

Before the advent of the playing card money, the French of Canada were afflicted with a melange of currency beyond human power to describe. It was everything and it was nothing. Many of the French coins were clipped, underweight, and of doubtful value. France cannot be entirely blamed for this condition for she was herself generally in financial straits and could afford little in the way of generally in inflancial straits and could afford little in the way of generosity. By way of trade, Canada picked up the coins of Spain, Portugal, England, and Mexico. All these coins circulated with French gold and silver louis, livres, crowns, francs, sols marpuez, liards, and deniers. I leave to the imagination of the reader what business exchange must have been like.

Wampum even found some employment and was used on both sides of the line in the early days. One would naturally suppose that it would not be worth the trouble of imitation. Nevertheless, its value was reduced and finally destroyed by cheap glass replicas brought in from Europe. It is almost a wonder that some method of counterfeiting beaver skins was not worked out for they were also employed as a kind of currency. Although in use until 1700, wampum was officially "demonetized" in 1670.

Playing card money lasted for nearly 75 years, from 1685 until the fall of Quebec in 1759. It began as a temporary expedient for money was painfully slow in getting across the Atlantic. France never did really approve such currency because she naturally feared that issues of it would get out of hand and cause serious trouble. Further, she was the real power behind the currency and would eventually be called upon to redeem it. But since she could send little hard money, therefore she accepted the inevitable.

Card currency was made by cutting cards in quarters, affixing to them the seal of the treasuerer in wax, and then placing on them the autographs of the Governor and Intendant. The first issue was of cards cut in quarters, later issues included halves or whole cards. Obviously, money of this kind was good only in Canada, and lacking the credit of France, would have been pure fiat money. It is a matter of wonderment that it worked as well as it did.

No one pretends that bad currency can be held solely responsible for the downfall of New France, Still, it was one of the most decisive factors. Good morale is impossible to maintain on the basis of doubtful or worthless money and it is certainly true that a demoralized people can hardly be expected to wage effective war. We all remember Germany and her money after the first World War.

Begot wrote to Vergor, the Beausejour commandant: "Profit by your place, my dear Vergor; clip and cut - you are free to do as you please." If this is not shameless cynicism there is no such thing. It is hardly remarkable that he made himself a millionaire at the expense of the French Government and the miserable habitans. We are told that Begot thought nothing of betting 1.500 pounds on a single throw of dice.

Given the power to do so, Begot requisitioned wheat and cattle in the name of the King, paid the wretched farmers little or practically nothing, and then sold the same things back to them at a vast profit. Bread, 3 sous a pound, sold to the public for 20 to 30. Meat purchased for 6, sold from 40 to 60. Rations were issued to militia never called up and charged for at 4 times their value. And although it cannot be proved, there is strong reason to support the belief that Madame de Pompadour profited by some of his unholy activity.

Gresham's well known law operated in New France quite the same as always. Begot and his confederates did not feather their nests with playing card money that would be of no value to them in France for they all planned to return to their home country with fortunes. Begot's paper money, issued on the credit of France, was used by him to purchase goods of all kinds. In the meantime, he and his willing cohorts cornered as much of the good metallic currency as they could.

For approximately one 10 year period (1718-1728) France managed to get the distrusted card money out of circulation and redeemed it by bills of exchange for 50 per cent of its value. This being done, its resumption of use was strictly forbidden. But the edict was not obeyed and it reappeared in 1729. And quite as had been feared. it got beyond control, rising to 1 million livres in a 20 year period. This situation did not bother the speculators at the top of the heap.

Another 10 year period (1749-1759) saw a positively astronomical rise to the figure of 14 million livres. Nor does this take into account some 40 to 50 million livres in bills of exchange that were in France and supposed to be redeemed in some way or other. And in France and supposed to be redecided in some way of other. And it should not be forgotten that France was not only having trouble in Canada but was also trying to prosecute a war against Prussia, partly because the Pompadour had her beautiful nose put out of joint by Frederick the Great.

Montcalm was aware almost from the first that Vaudreuil and Begot were doing the country no good and he wrote the authorities in France apprising them in full of what was going on. In his turn, Vaudreuil filled reams of paper with attacks on Montcalm together with generous praise of himself and his proteges, a thing which certainly should have aroused suspicion. A divided authority, with Vaudreuil and Montcalm fighting each other, helped things. And although experience usually teaches most of us a few things, it taught Vaudreuil nothing.

Just before the fall of Quebec, and acting upon information given by Montcalm, the French Treasury suddenly came to life and refused to honour a flood of 33 million francs in promissory notes that Begot saw fit to issue. This was not entirely the end of the matter but it was the end of Begot, Vaudreuil, and numerous others. Eventually, a large portion of the card money was redeemed at 25 per cent of face value, some of it being purchased by British speculators. It was with this dismal financial background that the battle of the Plains of Abraham was fought, a battle among the few decisive ones of the world.

With the limited resources that he had, Montcalm literally worked miracles. He did not even allow the fall of Louisbourg to discourage him. With the fall of this stronghold, one on which France had spent mllions, Wolfe and Amherst promptly moved to Quebec English artillery made a shambles out of the lower town and did serious damage to the upper part. But Montcalm refused to be lured out of his defenses and he had good reason to suppose that his position was impregnable. And for some time, Wolfe and Amherst were inclined to agree with him.

But on the 13th of September, and at the last possible moment, Wolfe found a way up the steep approach that was lightly guarded. Once on the top, he deployed his men in a line roughly a mile long, his first line one of 3,111 men. The depth was but two men, the files a yard apart, with 40 yards between battalions, and Highlanders occupied the centre. At one end of the line was an arrowhead formation facing both front and rear.

Montcalm assaulted the British with 3 heavy columns. Fire was withheld until the French were within 40 paces. The concentrated blast of fire that they encountered was devastating and the column heads were mowed down as if by a giant scythe. A second volley was almost as deadly and the whole battle was but a brief 10 minutes of time. By an odd freak of fate, both Wolfe and Montcalm were shot three times. Thus ended New France and the lives and careers of both commanders.

Both men were remarkably alike. They were men of unquestioned honesty, integrity, and unflinching courage. Both were able exponents of military strategy and both enjoyed the confidence of the men under them. Wolfe was paid so little that he was actually unable to meet his expenses. He was paid 2 pounds a day although 10 was supposed to be the figure. Montcalm fared much the same for he was 20,000 ecus out of pocket. Trying to make money at the expense of their countries was a thought that neither would have entertained for a moment.

On their return to France, Vaudreuil, Begot, and more than 50 others were duly put on trial for corruption and fraud and thrown into the Bastille. Getting through all the mass evidence occupied nearly 2 years. Vaudreuil was in the end acquitted because it could not be proved that he had made any personal profit out of the fraud which went on all about him, Nevertheless, he lived out the remainder of his life in disgrace.

Begot was not let off so easily. He was banished from France for life, no small punishment of itself, and all of his property was sequestrated. Ordinary history takes no trouble to remember either of them. But Montcalm and Wolfe are an eternal honor to France and England.

Dear Sir:

Received my copy of "The Coin Press" and after looking it over I certainly do not have to wait for the other 2 issues (trial 3 issues $1.00) so I am mailing $2.00 for the other (9) issues.

I have just recently begun coin collecting, and your magazine certainly has been informative and very helpful. It certainly beats the others that I have read over.

MINTS CLOSE TILL JULY 5: BANKS SHORT ON PENNIES

WASHINGTON, June 22. The nation's mints are closed until July 5, and some banks are running short of pennies.

Leland Howard, assistant director of the Bureau of the Mint. said the coin-making plants at Denver and Philadelphia closed last week for the regular annual inventory and machinery overhaul. He said they would resume operations after hte Fourth of July week-end.

Demand for coins, particularly pennies, has been heavy in recent months and the mint shutdown was reported to be aggravating penny shortages in some sections. However, Mr. Howard said the number of pennies that the mints added to the circulating stream was small compared with the number in circulation.

For the next fiscal year, the mints are seeking a supplemental appropriation of $600,000 to permit the manufacture of 1,000,000,-000 additional pennies.

Mr. Bernet of the Newark Stamp & Coin Shop of N. J. found 8 of these in 1 bag. Since then reports received showed several hundred more were found by other collectors throughout the country.

Dear Sir:

I've been checking my 1960-D Pennies for small wide date.

I find three types of date mint marks. Hi D - Lo D - on line D. -Dr. Jerome Horna

Sandwich Illinois Dear Mr. Spadone,

Recently, while checking my Canadian Nickels, I came across a 1951 with a DOT over the letter "T" in cents. Are there many of these nickels in circulation?

so, do they have any value? -Theodore R. Devine Quebec, Canada

Gentlemen.

About the 1960 coins, I have some. Not only the R in Liberty verse the A in America is filled. Also I have sharp edges on Lincoln fronts & sheared seems to me like a bad die or loose die. I work in a steel mill on a hammer. E in Liberty - also.

-Andy M. Patapow Solvay, N. Y.

Dear Sir, I have a 1952-D Lincoln cent with 1 - 3 grains on the reverse, 2 - A (CE) stamped across the reverse and a incuse tap on the obverse

Could you tell me if there are any of this type in circulation & if it has any value.

I am enclosing a check for a years' subscription with your magazine.

-Mrs. C. Christopher Planview, L. I.

(Editor's Note)

All die variations of cracked skulls, ripped sleeve, dots, missing letters etc. are all mechanical defects in a die during its process These are not considered rare or valuable - if one looks close enough through rolls he'll find hundreds of these which are either filled or cracked dies. Their value is 1¢ up to what a collector will pay, which is usually 15¢.
